

This summer, why not have

The RIDOT Division of Highway Maintenance is recruiting Student Highway Maintenance Workers for its Summer Cleanup Operations 2003. There are statewide opportunities for the positions, which run from May to September, and which pay $8.50 per hour for a 40 hour workweek.

The Rhode Island Department of Transportation is now accepting applications from students, age eighteen (18) years or older, to assist with the summer cleanup operations along state highways. To be qualified, individuals must be a Rhode Island resident enrolled in an academic program in good standing and be physically able to perform general unskilled manual labor such as sweeping, shoveling, grass cutting, weed wacking, litter pickup, etc. Students will be hired as seasonal employees in accordance with State Personnel Rules.

The individuals must at the time of hiring meet the following minimum criteria:

- Be age 18 or over and a resident of the State of Rhode Island
- Enrolled in an academic program in good standing for fall 2003
- Possess a valid Driver's License
- Pass a physical examination to perform assigned duties

If you meet the qualifications and are interested with this season's operations, send a copy of your resume or a completed Form CS14, and evidence of your academic standing. Responses should be sent to the address listed below:
